

Need for Logo Design

The Institute for Education of Women in Africa and the Diaspora (IEWAD), a local non-profit with a global mission, seeks a U-M Art & Design undergraduate student to create a logo which would be used for branding and marketing purposes of our organization.

The Institute for Education of Women in Africa and the Diaspora (IEWAD) was created in 1997 by a group of African and American women in response to the recognition of the disadvantaged status that continues to dominate the lives of girls and women in Africa, in large part due to the denial of the right to education. IEWAD asserts that education, be it formal or informal, promises to solve many of the problems that girls and women face in many African countries. Consistent with this assertion, IEWAD is committed to improving the well-being of girls and women in Africa via educational research, service, and advocacy. IEWAD has as its overall objective to contribute to the well-being of girls and women in Africa and the Diaspora via educational means. More specifically, the objectives are to enhance the intellectual, cultural, social, spiritual, physical, and economic well-being of girls and women in Africa and the Diaspora via the promotion of their education and training.

If you are interested, please send a copy of your resume and a link to the website (or samples of your work if you don't have a website) to me at iewadglobal@gmail.com. Deadline to indicate your interest is February 17th. If you would like more information about IEWAD, please feel free to contact me at susan.kouassi@gmail.com or (734) 358-0807. Fees will be negotiable.

Susan Frazier-Kouassi, Ph.D., Founder and President of IEWAD